Missouri Hall Senate Sponsors Go Green Tuesdays

Students hope to save the environment

Kirksville, March 19, 2009: Members of the Missouri Hall Senate are trying to help their fellow residents go green this spring. The Senate is sponsoring Go Green Tuesdays to highlight things everyone can do to impact the environment less by using both natural and fiscal resources less. Even small savings can help save the planet and the University's bottom line.

Residents in the building are encouraged to wear green on Tuesdays to help other remember. People can help out on Tuesdays by taking shorter showers, using the heating/cooling less, and making an extra effort to turn off unused lights and appliances. To help the students remember the Go Green Tuesdays, hall staff will leave the "Quiet Hours Lights" off on Tuesdays.

This is one of several ventures taken by the students on the Missouri Hall Senate. The Senate is charged with representing the needs of the residents in all forums. They consult with University administration and plan events for members of the Missouri Hall community.

Missouri Hall is a coed residence hall housing over 500 students on the campus of Truman State University. Built in 1965, MO Hall was fully renovated for 2007. The building's unique physical design helps to create a warm community for all who live there, forging lifelong connections and friendships.
